We are delighted to welcome Mike Boxhall back to Germany for a three-day advanced training workshop to be entitled:

Presence in Stillness

Extending the therapeutic relationship to deeper levels

11th to the 13th of May 2017 in Siegsdorf, Germany

At the source of Osteopathy and Craniosacral Therapy, there is a great Intelligence at work. It is called wisdom and it is located in the heart. It is the same wisdom that is also at work at the core of emotional and psychological work. Tiiu Bolzmann, a very senior teacher in Family Constellation Work in South America, said after experiencing this work: "This is the way forward." If we can work from that wisdom we are working with the whole client, not just one aspect which inevitably must be the concepts of the personal intellect ... We do not need to destroy these concepts but to digest them, make use of them and then expand some more.

Awareness, Trust, Practice, Embodiment, Stillness and Presence combined with non-judgement are the stepping stones to a raising of consciousness.

The work is always embodied and may open new doors of experience in both the client and the practitioner. All very deep level work must be a joint practice and grounded.

Mike's model derives directly from the work of William Sutherland. After his death, Sutherlands work became so intellectualised and packaged. Very senior osteopaths and psychologists from all over have described Mike's work as being not an alternative, but an extension at the levels of their work.

Michael Boxhall, RCST., FCSTA, has been a practicing therapist for forty years in the fields of counselling, psychotherapy (Jungian), acupuncture, and craniosacral therapy. He served as Chairman of the CSTA of the United Kingdom for five years and has published two books and several articles and poems in the field of craniosacral therapy taken to its spiritual level. Mike also served as a board member of the Craniosacral Therapy Association of North America for three years. Nowadays Mike focuses exclusively on teaching internationally and training teachers.
